

Technologent Supports the American Red Cross in Austin, TX

LAKE FOREST, CA, April 15, 2010 - Technologent, a leading national provider of technology infrastructure solution for Fortune 1000 companies and a certified Women-Owned Business Enterprise (WBE), has joined with First American Flood Data Services to support the Red Cross and their efforts to provide International Disaster Relief, by sponsoring the 2010 Worm Burn Golf Tournament. The 2010 Worm Burn Tournament will take place on Saturday, May 1st at the Berry Creek Country Club in Georgetown, Texas.

“Technologent is honored to support such a worthwhile cause.” said Lezlie Gallaway, CEO of Technologent. “At a time when the need around the world, and at home, has never been greater, we want to give back to the organizations that have helped support our success and our growth.”

First American Flood Data Services has made it a priority to share their success with others in the community. Through volunteer projects, food drives and fundraisers, they disperse donations to organizations including the American Cancer Society, the Capital Area Food Bank, the American Red Cross of Central Texas and the Salvation Army.

For nearly a century, the American Red Cross of Central Texas has worked to relieve and prevent the suffering of others. The Red Cross plays an essential role in the community and around the world, in ways that range from providing shelter for victims of flooding to providing lifeguard training at your local pool.
