

Technologent Gives Back Through Philanthropic Activities

LAKE FOREST, CA, November 25, 2009 - Technologent, a leading national provider of technology infrastructure solution for Fortune 1000 companies and certified Women-Owned Business Enterprise (WBE), is committed to giving back to its community through ongoing philanthropic activities and participation.

When Lezlie Gallaway founded Technologent she set a goal to make the lives of her employees and their communities better and more rewarding. In meeting this goal, Lezlie actively supports local charitable organizations and encourages her employees to do the same.

"We believe that doing good deeds is an essential part of doing good business." said Lezlie Gallaway, CEO of Technologent. "At a time when the need around the world, and at home, has never been greater, we want to give back to the organizations that have helped support our success and our growth."

One of the organizations that Lezlie personally supports is Laura's House. The guiding principle of Laura's House is "to reduce the incidence, recidivism and intergenerational cycle of domestic violence through education, counseling, support, case management and life skills training for victims of all ages."

Lezlie encourages volunteerism at Technologent. "Even in this tough economy, the spirit of giving is alive and well at Technologent," said Lezlie. "In Nebraska, our Call Center employees have raised money for the local elementary schools, counseling services for abused children, and Headstart."

ABOUT LAURA'S HOUSE

Laura's House provides direct services to more than 2500 victims and their families each year through a 24-hour crisis hot line, emergency shelter, food and clothing, counseling, case management and legal services. Today, more than ever nonprofit organizations are facing severe financial challenges. As the economy has slowed and funding for services has been cut back, Laura's House depends on community support to help us meet the current needs of our clients, maintain our current level of quality services and grow our organization to meet our future needs.
